Dan Griswold, associate director of The CATO Institute’s Center for Trade Policy Studies, specializes in the economic effects of international trade and immigration. His studies have focused on the trade deficit, imports and manufacturing, the World Trade Organization, congressional voting on trade, and Mexican immigration. His articles have appeared in the Wall Street Journal, the Los Angeles Times, and other major publications, and he has appeared on "The NewsHour" on PBS, C-SPAN's "Washington Journal," Fox News Channel, CNBC, the BBC, CNN-fn, and the Voice of America, as well as numerous talk-radio programs. Griswold has testified before the Senate Finance and Commerce committees, the House Ways and Means and International Relations trade subcommittees, the U.S. Trade Deficit Review Commission, and the U.S. International Trade Commission. Before joining Cato, Griswold served as a congressional press secretary and a daily newspaper editorial page editor. He holds a bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Wisconsin at Madison and a diploma in economics and a master's degree in the politics of the world economy from the London School of Economics.