David Eaton, Bess Harris Jones Centennial Professor
LBJ School of Public Affairs
The University of Texas at Austin

David Eaton, Bess Harris Jones Centennial Professor of Natural Resource Policy Studies, teaches courses on environmental issues and quantitative methods in the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at The University of Texas at Austin. His research addresses topics on environmental management, natural resources, and insurance. Prior to coming to Texas in 1976, Eaton served as a staff member at the President’s Council on Environmental Quality, the Office of the President’s Science Advisor, the World Bank, and the U.S. Agency for International Development. Eaton completed a Ph.D. in environmental engineering and geography from The Johns Hopkins University, masters degrees in environmental health and public works administration at the University of Pittsburgh, and a bachelor’s degree in biology from Oberlin College. His current research focuses on improving water quality in the lower Rio Grande between Mexico and Texas.